Sophia Waugh

A Career in Writing.

After an education at Bishop Fox's in Taunton and Durham University, Sophia worked firstly in publishing, and then as a feature writer on newspapers. She went freelance on the birth of her first child, and at the same time began writing books. She has published novels, a biography, a book of interviews and a history of food writing in England. She still writes, but also teaches and is back at Bishop Fox's, her alma mater. She has just begun to study for a PhD on Madness in Victorian Literature
